Locro is a flavorful stew that utilizes fall vegetables, like corn (hominy) and acorn squash. Traditionally, Locro de Argenti na includes veal shoulder, pork shoulder, and Argentine chorizo. In this recipe, the veal has been replaced with beef sho ulder, as it is easier to find. Argentine chorizo is an uncured (raw) sausage, made with a blend of ground beef and groun d pork. The ground meat is often seasoned with garlic, paprika, and occasionally red wine. Argentine chorizo is typically grilled or occasionally smoked. In this recipe, Argentine chorizo can be replaced with any uncured, garlic sausage.
